AYER'S

CHERRY PECTORAL

For the Cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING-COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, AND CONSUMPTION.

In offering to the community this justly celebrated remedy for diseases of the throat and lungs, it is not our aim to mislead the afflicted, by pretending that it will cure all cases, but frankly to say what we have thereby proved ourselves—that it will surely and speedily cure the class of complaints against which it is recommended. We have abundant evidence to make this assertion, and we do not hold ourselves responsible for a single instance of failure, nor do we ask any one to purchase it against the advice of his physician, unless he has first tried other remedies. Our space will not permit us to publish certificates, nor is it necessary. The CHERRY PECTORAL is well known wherever we have agents, and its virtues are established beyond suspicion. Where the public have long been in possession of the facts, it is unnecessary to recapitulate them.

From the distinguished Professor of Chemistry and Materia Medica, Bowdoin College.

Dr. Sir,—I delayed answering the request of your letter until I had an opportunity to witness the effects of it in my own family, and in the families of my neighbors. I have now had it in use for several months, and have no hesitation in saying that it is the most effectual remedy for the cure of pulmonary diseases.

PARKER CLEAVELAND, M. D.

Brunswick, Me., Feb. 5, 1847.

From an Overseer in the Hamilton Mills, in Lowell.

Lowell, Aug. 10, 1849.

J. C. Ayer:—I have used a variety of the most celebrated remedies for coughs, colds, and consumption, but have never found any which have relieved me so promptly, or effected a cure so speedily, as your Cherry Pectoral. Yours, respectfully, D. EMERSON.

Read the following, and see if this medicine is worth a trial. This patient had become very low indeed, and the effect of the medicine was unmistakably decisive:—

Mr. J. C. Ayer:—I have been afflicted with a bad cough and pain in my lungs, and all the symptoms fulfilled consumption, for more than a year. I obtained a medicine that would relieve me, but never cured me, until I used the use of your Cherry Pectoral, which cured me of my cough entirely. My health is well again. I consider your medicine, in fact, the only medicine I ever found that would cure me. You may make what use of this certificate you please, as I am a Christian man and do not feel disposed to say what is not true. Yours, respectfully, JOHN ALLEN, Boston.

Prepared and sold by J. C. AYER, Practical Chemist, Lowell, Mass.

Sold by the following agents in Bangor, LADD & INGRAHAM, SARGENT & SIMPSONS, A. GOULD and Jos. GOLDEN, Hampden; G. F. Ayer & Co., Dixmont; and by Druggists generally throughout the country. nov 19

Littell's Living Age.

E. LITTELL & CO.,

Corner of Tremont and Bromfield Streets.

THIS work is conducted in the spirit of Liberality and Moderation. Each Literature (which was favorably received by the public for twenty years) but as it is twice as large, and appears in different form, not only gives more of that freshness to it by issuing things which were excluded by a month's delay, but, also, thus extending its scope and gathering a greater and more attractive variety, is able to present the solid and substantial part of a literary, historical, and political harvest, as fully to satisfy the wants of the American reader.

The elaborate and lasting Essays of the Edinburgh and Quarterly, and other Reviews and Blackwood's noble criticisms on Poetry, his keen political Commentaries, highly wrought Tales, and vivid descriptions of rural and mountain Scenery; and the contributions of the ablest pens in Common Life, in the weekly essays of Spectator, the sparkling Examiner, the judicious Athenæum, the lively and instructive Literary Gazette, the sensible and comprehensive Britannia, the other and respectable Christian Observer; these are intermixed with the Military and Naval reminiscences of the United Service, and with the best articles of the Dublin University, New Monthly, Fraser's, Tait's, Ainsworth's Hood's, and Sporting Magazines, and of Chambers's admirable Journal. He does not consider it honest, or dignified to borrow wit and wisdom from French and, when he thinks it good enough, makes use of the thunder of The Times.

The steamship has brought Europe, Asia, and Africa into our neighborhood, and will greatly multiply our connections as Merchants, Travellers and Politicians, with all parts of the world; so that much more than ever, it now becomes every intelligent American to be informed of the condition and character of Foreign Countries. And this not only because of their nearer connection with ourselves, but because the nations seem to be hastening through rapid process of change to some new state of things which the merely political prophet cannot comprehend or foresee.

Geographical Discoveries, the principles of Colonization, (which is a new thing in the whole world,) and Voyages and Travels, always favorite matter for fine adventure, and, in general, the civil, ecclesiastical and very fully acquainted he reader with the great department of Foreign affairs, without neglecting even the

While the Living Age is desirable to all who wish to keep themselves informed of the rapid progress of the movements of State-men, Literary Lawyers, and Physicians—in short of business and men of leisure—it will be found to be equally attractive and useful to their Wives and Children. It is indispensable in every well-ordered family. We say indispensable, because in this day of cheap literature it is not possible to guard against the introduction of what is bad in taste and pernicious in moral in any other way, than by furnishing a sufficient supply of the healthy character. The mental and moral appetite must be gratified.

By continuing its select from the cheap they provide abundantly for the imagination, and the whole family will find in it a rich and varied fund of entertaining and instructive reading.

The choicest Tales, Sketches, Poetry, Anecdotes, Bon Mots, Scientific Notices, Criticisms, Wit and Humor of the Foreign Periodicals, will be found in the Living Age.

This excellent work is published every Saturday, by E. LITTELL & CO., Boston, who supply readers by mail from all parts of the country. Remittances to them, at the risk of the publishers, are at the rate of Four Dollars a year. Single numbers, twelve cents each. Specimen numbers sent gratis to those who wish to examine it before subscribing. A prospectus, containing the opinions of the press, and a pamphlet of 48 pages, double column octavo,—Price 12½ cts.—or by the year, Six Dollars.

We add to our own recommendation, what is more to the purpose, a letter from one of our readers who will value it highly:

Washington, 27th December, 1849.

Of all the Periodical Journals devoted to Literature and Science which abound in Europe and in this country, this has appeared to me to be the most useful. It contains indeed the cream of the current literature of the English tongue, but this by no means to the exclusion of the comprehensive, includes a portraiture of the human mind in the utmost expansion of its present age.

Sewing by Machinery.

To Journeymen Tailors, Seamstresses, Employers, and all others interested in Sewing of any description.

SEVERAL attempts have been made to produce Machines for Sewing, but they were met with at many objections, and could be used to little advantage or profit.

SINGER & PHELPS' Lately Patented Sewing Machine, invented by Isaac M. Singer, and manufactured by Singer & Phelps, No. 12 Harvard Place, Boston, Mass., is offered to the public as a perfect machine, and will be constructed and adapted to perform any kind of work, from the stitching of a fine shirt-bosom to a ship's sail, as well as coarse description of leather. The needle is straight, and works perpendicularly upon the table of the machine, stitching rows and rows upon rows, or forming a fabric in any way, and the stitch must be regulated to any length, even to nature's breadth.

The stitch made by this machine is one which will not ravel or ripen, and the sewing can only be taken apart by cutting every second or third stitch; from 500 (of 1500 stitches) according to the fabric operated upon, may be taken per minute.

To bring this machine to perfection, much labor and study have been expended upon it by the inventor, and the subscribers now offer the Belly-stitch Sewing Machine, feeling confident that it will correspond, upon trial, with the recommendation here given.

The work arising from the use of one of these machines, which sews with either one or two needles, is from five to six dollars per day. The operation is not confined to the manufacture of clothing only, but may be applied to sewing every description of cotton, woolen, and mixed goods of cut work.

This machine, with ordinary care, is warranted 8 running year without repairs, and will last many years. As it is so simple in its construction, and so easily regulated and managed, that any person of ordinary ability may operate it.

The price of one of these machines, which is worked by a treadle, and capable of sewing any ordinary linen, cotton or woolen fabrics, is one hundred and twenty-five dollars, complete, with all appendages for operation.

These machines are so beautiful and neat in their appearance, and they take up so little room, that they are an ornament to any lady's sewing apartment.

An Agent, (with whom exclusive arrangements will be made,) is wanted in every city and town in the United States.

All applications for Agencies, and all orders containing money for machines, (which will be carefully packed to send to any parts of the world,) as well as all inquiries about the operation of different purposes, will be promptly attended to by the manufacturers. All letters must be post-paid, and addressed to

The SCHENCK'S PULMONARY BALSAM, having been tested by the experience of thousands during the last twenty years, is now recommended by eminent physicians and others, of the most respectable character, as superior to any other preparation.

From the Editor of the Worcester Spy and Temperance Standard.

Worcester, May 17, 1850.

Dr. Schenck:—Dear Sir,—Your Pulmonary Balsam, of which we have frequently spoken favorably, is rapidly growing into public favor, and will, we believe, become the most popular medicine ever offered for the cure of Coughs, Colds and Consumption. That is the testimony of its high reputation is made sufficiently evident by the immense sale of the annual thousands of bottles. MRS. FOSTER'S Dysentery and Diarrhœa CORDIAL.

THIS purely Vegetable Medicine has been thoroughly tested and proved to be the very best Medicine now in use, as a speedy cure, for Dysentery and Diarrhœa. We do not mean to say that it will cure the Cholera, but we do say that in the memorable season of 1849 this Medicine was administered with admirable success in persons who had every appearance of being attacked with the Cholera and (to our belief) giving immediate relief. It has also proved decidedly beneficial to Children when cutting their teeth.

This is a Medicine which every family should have in it not only cures the above complaints, but it is the very best remedy for Pain in the Stomach and Bowels; it regulates the Digestive Organs, gives the Appetite and gives new vigor to the Weak and Debilitated. It is, also, an excellent remedy for Colds and Coughs. Try it and you will find it to be all that it is recommended.

Bangor, Oct. 21, 1850.

John E. Wilder, Esq.

Dear Sir,—The safe I purchased of you was exposed to a great degree of heat at the burning of the Telegraph Office, in this city. It was in the fire six hours; the books and papers were uninjured, and the damage to the Safe very slight, although it fell from the second story to the basement in the burning. The little repairs necessary to the Safe have been made, and we shall not need to return it. It is still as good as ever.

Respectfully yours, JAS. EDDY.

AGENCY FOR BUSINESS WITH U. S. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON,

No. 22 State Street, Boston.

IN 1840 the subscriber was appointed by the Commissioner of Patents, Agent of the U. S. Patent Office, in accordance with the 10th Sec. of Act of '37.

Having relinquished the Agency for the transmission of Models, and adopted a more expeditious mode of sending them to the Patent Office, whereby a Patent may be procured in about six weeks from the time it is entrusted to me, I continue to prepare Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all the necessary Papers and Drawings for Patenting, and to render advice on legal and scientific matters respecting the same. Patents secured in France and other countries.

By application at this office, inventors are saved the time and expense of a journey to Washington and delay there, as well as all personal trouble in obtaining their patents. They also have the advantage of personally explaining their inventions, and of consulting in respect to their matters, in general of the greatest importance in order to obtain correct specifications and claims. The experience of fifteen years in the practice of examining the records of the Patent Office, and the models, drawings and specifications preserved there, enables the subscriber to afford to inventors valuable information, and to give opinions as to the novelty and patentability of inventions, which may save them the expense of useless applications at the Patent Office. Charges moderate.

Those who may favor me with their business may rely on having it faithfully and promptly attended to, and on my using my best endeavors to procure for them the most favorable results.

Models of inventions should be sent by Express, or other conveyance, to the subscriber, at the risk of the owner, and marked to the care of Messrs. Adams, Harnden & Co., Boston.

Inventors who reside at a distance, can have their models made by any mechanic in their vicinity, after the model of the machine has been perfected and approved of by me.

Persons who have made inventions, and who wish to ascertain whether they are new, can have a search made at the Patent Office, by forwarding a description of the invention, with a fee of $5. Information will be given as soon as the search can be made, whether a patent can be obtained or not, and if not, the reasons why not

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 1, 1851.

Beginning of the Year.

The soon of the nineteenth century has dawned upon the world, according to the calendar established in 1752, and which now rules throughout a large portion of the world. The beginning of the year is very properly esteemed as a way mark in time; a stand point from which to survey the past, gather up the accumulations of the present and thus to calculate the probabilities of the future, since the past and present are the seeds and the direct forces which determine and shape the future.

The time of the beginning of the year has varied with many people, and been subject to various changes, but with all, the day itself has been generally noted, and associated with it there have been to all nations many pleasant memories.

For the purpose of reviving some of the changes and circumstances connected with New Year's Day, we will refer to a few of them as marked down in the history of mankind. The Mexicans begin the year in February, when the leaves begin to be green. Their year consists of eighteen months, having twenty days in each; the last five are spent in mirth, and no business is suffered to be done, not even any service in the temples. The Abyssinians have five supernumerary days at the end of their year, which commences on the 26th of August. The American Indians reckon from the first appearance of the moon at the vernal equinox. The Mahommedans begin their year the minute in which the sun enters Aries. The Venetians, Florentines, and the Pisans in Italy, begin the year at the vernal equinox. The Chaldean and Egyptian year was dated from the autumnal equinox. The ecclesiastical year of the Jews began in the spring; but in civil affairs they reckon the epoch of the Egyptian year. The ancient Chinese reckoned from the new moon nearest the middle of Aquarius. The year of Romulus commenced in March, and that of Numa in January. The Turks and Arabs date their year from the 16th of July. Dramschild, or Gemschild, King of Persia, observed on the day of his public entry into Persepolis, that the sun entered into Aries; and in commemoration of this fortunate event, he ordained the beginning of the autumnal to the vernal equinox.—The Brahmins begin their year with the new moon in April. The French year, during the reign of the Merovingian race, began on the day on which the troops were reviewed, which was the 1st of March. Under the Carlovingians, it began on Christmas day, and under the Capetian on Easter day.—The ecclesiastical begins on the first Sunday in Advent. Charles IX. appointed, 1564, that for the future the civil year should commence on the 1st of January. The Julian calendar, which was so called from Julius Cæsar, and is the old account of the year, was reformed by Pope Gregory in 1582, which plan was suggested by Julius Lillio, a Calabian astronomer. The Dutch, and the Protestants in Germany, introduced the new style, in 1700. The ancient clergy reckoned from the 25th of March, and the method was observed in Britain until the introduction of the new style, A. D., 1752, after which our year commenced on the 1st of January. The time is now so well established that there is no danger of its being changed, and we may all safely celebrate this the first day of January as the veritable and authorized birth day of the year.

In country England, this day is observed as a great social festival, as it also is in some other countries and in some parts of our own country. In the city of New York, particularly, a custom has prevailed of gentlemen calling upon ladies and families of their acquaintance and greeting them with the compliments of the season and sharing in pleasant hospitalities. There are so many pleasant matters connected with this custom that it is a growing custom in all the large cities of our Union. In this city a number of persons have adopted the custom and continued it for ten years past, and every year with increasing numbers, until at length there are not a few who wish to see it become general in our community, and the whole people engage heartily in the cultivation of the social feelings and in the performance of friendly offices and neighborly kindnesses. We like the idea very much, and have suggested it and urged it for a number of years past. We think there is a special lack with our people upon this very point of cultivating the social feelings. There is need enough in Bangor for any reasonable purpose, and all that is wanting, in a social way, is a little more heart.

We commence the year then, generally, by wishing our readers, one and all near or distant, a Happy New Year! May it be happy to them in an eminent degree! That it may be so, that the opportunities may be complete, it should not be forgotten that the right seed must be sown and the right culture introduced into life. The neglects and mistakes and evils of the past must be removed and by the help of larger experience and nobler aims, and more earnest thought, and more thorough resolution that a new life should be commenced with the new year. All need perpetually to remember that every thought we entertain, every motive we cherish, every act we allow and every feeling we indulge, builds up, stone by stone, our moral being and character. They are all assimilated beyond recollection in our spiritual constitution, and are there fixed and inseparable. There is no escape for any one from being according to the quality of their daily life. The improvement of this subject we leave for each to make for himself, since it is most thought the special office of the press to preach.

The new year opens, we think, with new energies of the newspaper press in the support and upholding of the community. The expenses of maintaining the Whig and Courier have been greatly increased within the past year, both by an increased price for subscription, and by a greater liberality and expenditure for telegraphic despatches, and by a more liberal collection and preparation of news and matter calculated to interest and improve in the community to which it circulates. We are induced thus at a time for the exhibition and publication of our views and purposes, to say that we shall continue to labor for the support of the principles of the Whig party, and the public weal, and advise are more extensively sought in emergencies public and private; that they can more directly in contact with the public; that their acts and thoughts and sketches are necessarily more exposed to the world; that their influence for good or evil is greater in sustaining the public measures and doctrines and interests of party and the public, and in elevating men to office, and in keeping forward private and public improvements, than any other class; and yet that they share as little, if not the least, in the successes of either or any of these. The press is not regarded, practically, according to its merits nor paid according to its outlay, and labor, in anything like the pay of other professions or other mere mechanical pursuits. The newspaper debtor is not felt to be so much a matter of honor as it should be, and no other profession or pursuit would submit to so many losses and troubles and trials on account of long-winded debtors, as do the printers, as a general rule. The sum due from the people of Maine to Printers exceeds this day, five hundred thousand dollars!

This is plain talk, and our object in referring to it is to [illegible] and our readers that they should discriminate in their support of papers, for there are those that are good and those that are bad; some that are useful and some that are useless; some of great moral importance and some of no moral consequence whatever. It is for the first importance to sustain, upon all fundamental and vital principles, the local press, and beyond that one may enlarge on the support of publications according to his fancy and ability. The new year should be distinguished by an improvement in the press, by the faithfulness and promptness of the people in paying for its support.

With [illegible] we take so many cause and happy, and wish everyone a happy year, expressing out of such efforts as the [illegible] and contest of life, all may reasonably expect a happier year than usual. Begin the year right, be social, be kind, be honest, be charitable, be careful, be hopeful and may the Lord [illegible] and bless you, and lift upon you the light of his countenance and grant you a peaceful and happy year.

☞ Texas will forthwith receive her five millions to pay to her creditors, not the full amount of their bonds, but [illegible] the amount received by the State for them and interest thereon. Texas will, therefore, be able to [illegible] a considerable sum for our State objects. Five millions will be received in the Treasury of the United States to [illegible] demands upon this government, for the [illegible] secured by the pledge of imposts upon entry to Texas! But the State of Texas will probably undertake to [illegible] time within which no cause of the liability of the United States for the payment of those bonds shall be filed. The Treasury considerations, joined by Texas, have risen in the [illegible] the last sixty days, from [illegible] cents in the dollar to fifty cents.

☞ A great deal of anxiety has been manifested in this city [illegible] on account of the increase of the cholera in California. There is no occasion for this, according to the latest accounts. Mr Kirkpatrick of this city brought with him to San Francisco all the latest intelligence which had reached the country, and from him we learn that the cholera was gradually abating previous to his departure, and that for two days after he left there was no new case of cholera at Sacramento City where he had intelligence while he remained at San Francisco.

☞ In the Mercury will refer to our [illegible] of Saturday, to which it refers, it will be able to see that we made no allusion to the telegraphic despatch. But that we referred to our own, changing a single word to correct the telegraphic mistake as to the port to which the Ohio arrived.

We know too well the cost and the value of telegraphic despatches to [illegible] a fair one.

☞ Dr. Jackson's lecture on Monday evening, on a grain of corn, was of great interest, and justly won praise from a large and highly intelligent audience. The Doctor is a great favorite with our people and there is a great relish felt here in his scientific lectures. His first lecture of the course on Geology was illustrated and [illegible] and the second lecture will be delivered on Friday evening.

☞ Those who have not yet purchased articles for New Year's presents for their friends will find beautiful and appropriate books at Messrs. E. F. Duren & Co.'s and Wm. Lewis', as elegant specimens have reached us from these quarters. We have also received elegant specimens from the jewelry and fancy goods stores of Messrs. Hodgman & Sale and J. S. Tompkins.

☞ The Western mail failed to arrive here yesterday, probably on account of the snow on the railroad by the storm of Sunday. Our telegraphic despatch received on the previous evening will be found to our readers by placing them in possession of the latest news.

HENRY LINSLAND THE CHILDREN.—One of the most interesting scenes occurred at the Front street theatre this morning over witnessed in Baltimore. At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mayor Jerome received a note to Jenny Lind, asking if she could possibly [illegible] among the children at the hospital schools, and asking her if she would not afford them an opportunity to see and hear her. She immediately replied that she would be most happy to meet them at 10 o'clock this morning at the front street theatre, and at that hour [illegible] were assembled within its walls. After the [illegible] had taken their seats, Jenny Lind came forward and sang [illegible] several of the children, to their great delight. Her Lorelei, or last piece, to the boys, about [illegible] was [illegible] the orchestra, she came forward and addressed the children. She said it afforded her great pleasure to contribute to their pleasure, and added [illegible] they would hear her sing. Some of their [illegible] and sing, and soon mother, until their words failed them [illegible] and the proceedings [illegible] Jenny Lind, following by the United Sons [illegible] Baltimore Sun.

[illegible] Bangor, Me., dated at Aberdeen, Saco [illegible] Oldtown, Me., dated at Aberdeen, Saco [illegible] Oldtown, Me., dated at 40 min. to 11 A. M., November 7th, 1850.

The death of this exceptional young man, which was announced by the [illegible] of the Bangor Courier last week, has struck a thrill of horror through the whole community. Few are the men who has become so [illegible] in his dealings, and [illegible] in his disposition, he was not only respected by all, but in whatever circle he moved [illegible] and became the center of an almost irresistible sympathy.

In this home was a model of domestic happiness, in which he moved in all the simplicity of truth and affection. Four years since a little cherub was added to his family; and [illegible] full. But the [illegible] of joy had hardly time to dry, upon the cheek [illegible] sorrow gave it a new impulse, and we saw him in an agony of grief, while the young mother [illegible] and beautiful wife, [illegible] struggling in the arms of death. The scenes of that death-chamber will never be forgotten. The wounds in the heart were never healed. That loss was never made up.

His health failed, and for a long time it was supposed he would not live to follow the corpse but not long to the tomb. Might he not fly away from his grief and find happiness in the far off golden land? He went. He was successful in amassing wealth; but he never forgot his home. His letters were full of solicitude to the friends he had left behind. Though the wave enough he needed not the recollection of [illegible] parents, brother and sisters; and of his [illegible] upon which [illegible] to keep him in the path of honor. The [illegible] of his own noble heart were all sufficient. He was the same generous and high-minded being in California that he was in Maine. And why not? The virtue that is not proof against temptation does not deserve the name of virtue.—He still attended [illegible] of his [illegible] was sick he gave him [illegible] his own couch and administered to his wants day and night. He [illegible] established reputation as a man of high and honorable principle increased with every passing day—He was loved every where.

But the fell [illegible] came. The usual premonitory symptoms gave notice of his approach and developed a case of confirmed cholera, and in less than seven short hours the work of death was complete.

We are pleased to learn that he was surrounded with his friends, and that everything was done that could be done to save his life.

He was spared the [illegible] of his situation. On the swift pinions of thought [illegible] than the arrows of light he returned once more to his home. Once more he stood upon his own happy threshold in Oldtown. He was surrounded with loved ones. His little one, and his child was before him. He spoke her name. It was the last he uttered. When the name of a kind and only brother, with whom he had spent many years in the most endearing friendship, was mentioned, it was too much. He gave a death like grasp, [illegible] token of remembrance, and his freed spirit took its flight to [illegible] "dear friend and brother." Though thus [illegible] sleeping gently upon the sunny banks of the golden Shenandoah, lulled to its slumbers by the distant murmurings of the broad and gentle Potomac, and [illegible] by the [illegible] upon the banks of the dark Susquehanna, the [illegible] of the thundering Atlantic, [illegible] doubly sacred again where mountains and oceans, and distance and death shall separate no more.

One thought is worthy of notice. Ever since he left home his friends here have feared they might see him [illegible] more, and their yearning hearts have [illegible] for [illegible]

"Come home!—there is a sorrowing breath
In every breeze that we wander by,
With mournful memories blent.
There's silence in every household voice
And tears more sad than deep,
And the sweet word—brother—wakes a wish
To turn sighing and weep."

Even now they seem to hear him saying—

"Forget me, not around your hearth,
Where cheerly smiles the ruddy blaze,
For dear hath been its evening mirth
To me sweet friends, in other days!"

May the [illegible] of God [illegible] their [illegible] effect upon all the surviving friends.

Bangor, Dec. 30, 1850. D. H. M.

What Bangor Wants.

Bangor occupies a highly favorable position as it respects natural resources for wealth and business enterprise. She is situated at the head of navigation of a majestic river, from whence she can carry on trade with every city with all the commercial marts in the world. She is the centre of a large and highly productive agricultural region, the surplus products of which seek her markets in exchange for commodities which she has every facility for furnishing that any city in the Union possesses. Through the hands of her capitalists naturally pass for market and consumption, the products of the [illegible] and inexhaustable forests lying upon the Penobscot and its tributaries, and the immense supplies required to obtain these products. Within range of her commerce are inexhaustible mines of iron and slate and stores of other natural products waiting [illegible] for an easy access to her markets. About her are immense water privileges and other agents for manufacturing purposes, which are scarcely thought of being put in requisition as a means of increased wealth. She possesses all the facilities for manufacturing a great variety of articles for which she is dependent on other cities within and without our own State, whose facilities are no greater but only better improved. In fine, she lies in the midst of a great profusion of resources of wealth and enterprise, capable of making her a rival in every respect with at least any other city on the Maine, and yet she does not, or seems not to know it; or knowing it, she seems buried in unaccountable indifference to it. She is plodding along in her progress to wealth, enterprise and greatness, at a pace characteristic of the past. She is engaged in individual rather than corporate enterprises. Every business man seems to [illegible] his own exclusively, struggling isolated to [illegible] up a competence, and adapting to combine his powers of mind and money with those of others to enlarge business and increase wealth and an eminence, which individual effort can never hope to gain. So [illegible] the business energies of this city, that it cannot lay a just claim to the honorable [illegible] of public enterprise which other cities [illegible] boast of and by which they are, with no more [illegible] means, far outstripping her.—We [illegible] undertake the business talent and [illegible] spirit that are in our city; we seek to develop those new dormant, and inspire them to an [illegible] of public enterprises on a larger scale than ever before, commensurate with their capacities and with the undeveloped resources of wealth around us, which are pointing, as it were, for something more than mere individual enterprise.

Bangor, then, wants public spirit; she wants and wants immediately, an enlistment of her wealth, in corporate forms, for the development of the abundant resources of wealth which lie within her reach. She wants a just appreciation of her own interests and honor. She wants a [illegible] for the development of her powers, which a candid comparison of her own position and progress in wealth and population with that of her sister cities, will [illegible]

Being sensible of these wants, and having resolved to supply them, how shall she go to work? by what means may she seek the attainment of her object? We submit at present only two of them.—The one is to tap the ocean of capital here with railroads. And to employ her water power for manufacturing purposes.

In our opinion—and we have given the subject a careful consideration—the true interest of Bangor requires the construction, as soon as practicable, of a line of Railroad up the valley of the Kenebeasaga, thence into Piscataquis County, and one up the valley of the Penobscot to Moosehead. These enterprises once commenced would energize all the old and sympathies of all classes of men on the respective lines to such a degree as to ensure their entire success. The [illegible] interests will be promoted by the construction of a dam and the erection of various [illegible] establishments at Treat's Falls, [illegible] there is a [illegible]

[illegible] Bangor and its tributary interests, from the investment of its surplus capital in these enterprises, and particularly the relation of these Railroad lines with the contemplated European and North American Railroad, and the upper [illegible] as called, from Waterville, will occupy our attention at a future time. We proposed to ourself at this time only to speak briefly of the situation and wants of Bangor, and to indicate the three principal enterprises the accomplishment of which, in our opinion, would in a great degree supply those wants and place Bangor in a position in point of wealth and enterprise, which she must soon assume, or suffer the mortification and disgrace of seeing herself fall back far in the rear of her sister cities which have no greater facilities for wealth and eminence than she has. She cannot long remain stationary. She will recede, and her vigorous young men and women will seek other fields, for their industry and the investment of their future means, if she does not immediately wake up to her true interests and make resolute and determined efforts to advance in enterprise, wealth and population. Let her business men resolve upon this course at once, and invite back to their borders the enterprising young men who have gone into other parts for employment. Let her do her duty to herself as the City of the East, the commercial Emporium of the valley of the Penobscot.—Bangor Jeffersonian.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Mrs. —— Smith, wife of Mr. John Berry Smith of this town, was found dead in her bed on Tuesday morning. The day previous she had a heavy washing, but complained to the evening of headache, to which she was subject, retired to bed, and in the morning when one of her family went to her room to call her to breakfast, found her a corpse.—Calais Journal.

HERE is what we like as to excellence in Writing Ink. The following is the testimonial of the Hon. Benj. Brown Thatcher, of Kennebunk:

"Mr. Mann's Ink is manufactured by Dr. Wm. Mann of this city. We have used it for the last eight or nine years, and can assure the public that it is an excellent article. It is a jet black, flows freely from the pen, and retains its color on our account books, after the lapse of years, as fresh as when first written. The proprietor of this article does not pretend to bring this before the public, as it has been exclusively put only to its merits, but in addition to other testimonials of the kind, he has the Hon. Ether Shepley, No. 57 West Monument Square."

GENUINE BALM OF COLUMBIA.

IF you wish a rich, luxurious head of hair, free from dandruff, unmoistened, combs fully as pleasure the genuine Balm of Columbia. In cases of baldness it will more than exceed your expectations. Many who have lost their hair for many years, by the use of this article, have had a fine growth of hair produced in a few months. In cases of nervous headache, it relieves almost instantly, by the use of this article. A few applications will prove its efficacy. In cases of scalds or burns, it allays the pain almost instantly, and in a short time causes the fluid to flow with which the delicate hair tubes are filled, by which nature intended it should be nourished. In fact, for all purposes for which the hair was given us the Arabian Balm of Columbia is unequalled. It will restore gray hair to its natural color in from two to three weeks, and will positively prevent it from falling off. The most pleasant wash that can be used. A few applications only are necessary to keep the hair from falling out. It keeps the roots of the hair alive, and causes a new growth to spring up. It is a perfect luxury for the toilet. It is composed entirely of vegetable ingredients, and contains no mineral or other poisonous substance whatever. It is the most delightful article for the toilet ever offered to the public. It is highly perfumed, and will not stain the most delicate fabric. Explicit directions accompany each bottle. Price 50 cents per bottle.
